BIOGRAPHY

Like many climbers who competed at Tokyo 2020 Canadian born Sean McColl has always dreamt of being an Olympian. The difference is that he played a major part in making it happen. The announcement of sport climbing's inclusion into the Olympic Games was particularly special for the 33-year-old who as president of the IFSC's athlete commission had made several presentations to the IOC on behalf of the sport. He was careful to cite the young demographic of the climbers - and it paid off. McColl has been a professional climber since he was 19, enjoying a lengthy career - and collecting a diploma from the British Columbia Institute of Technology in between.

3x3 BASKETBALL

Olympic Debut

Tokyo 2020

HISTORY OF 3x3 Basketball

What is 3x3 Basketball?

3x3 basketball is an exciting, urban and innovative variation of basketball played with three players on each team on a half-court setup with one hoop and backboard. It is widely held to be the world's number one urban team sport.

By whom, where and when was 3x3 Basketball invented?

3x3 basketball was developed as a creative variation of traditional full-court basketball.

The sport has its origins in the urban areas of the United States of America in the late 1980s where the condensed form of basketball was often practiced in backyards and parks before eventually evolving into a cultural phenomenon.

Following its soaring popularity FIBA later developed 3x3 as the second basketball discipline to attract a new audience and provide more opportunities for its member associations and players worldwide. It was structured into a professional sport with official rules sanctioned by FIBA.
